In this assignment, 5 categories of Bengali handwritten letters are used to train a multilayered feedforward network and a conventional convolutional neural network.

After training each model, the training data is fed into the model again so that by using the predicted labels outputted by the model, a standard image is shown beside each training image as its predicted label.

Here, all the folders along with their contents that were used in the code are given in the zip folder.